

MLPAO APLMO 2025 BINGO

Everything was fine... until someone said the “Q” word.	Have taken a course with the MLPAO	The analyzer just passed QC... and now it’s giving errors again.	You registered for Lab Summit 2026.	You’ve already taken your gloves off... and one more sample arrives.
You dropped something and bent over... now all your pens are on the floor.	You just finished taking a blood sample from a patient... doctor now orders blood cultures.	“It’ll only take a second” — 45 minutes later, you’re still fixing it.	You are an MLPAO member.	You found and corrected a specimen labelling error before the sample was run.
Printer runs out of labels in the middle of a rush.	Somebody brought baked goods... you said you’re “cutting back.”	You participated in an MLPAO social media event (this one counts).	You tried to leave on time... and the phone rings.	You renewed your MLPAO membership for 2026.
The only pen in the lab disappears... again.	Ended your shift with less than 5 samples in pending!	The new barcode scanner refuses to scan... just your samples.	You referred a colleague to join MLPAO.	The elevator stops on every. single. floor.
You’re finally caught up... and then the ER calls.	You attended a Lab Talks Webinar.	You got a blood draw on a known difficult patient, first try!	Your short staffed... 3 days in a row.	A Patient/Doctor/Nurse, thanked you for being helpful.
